Welcome and Working Principles

This handbook summarises Meridian's workforce standards, employee responsibilities, and operating expectations. It is not a contract of employment, but it does describe mandatory rules for information security, use of systems, and ethical conduct.

Core Policies

- Use Meridian systems only for authorised business purposes and follow least-privilege access principles.
- Protect confidential customer, employee, and partner information and report suspected security events immediately.
- Do not upload regulated or confidential data to unsanctioned AI tools or personal cloud services.
- Remote work requires use of approved devices, VPN or secure access tooling, and device encryption.
- Managers are responsible for timely onboarding, offboarding, and review of elevated access.

People and Conduct

Meridian expects respectful conduct, timely completion of mandatory training, and use of established channels for legal, compliance, and security concerns. Retaliation for good-faith reporting is prohibited.

Data and AI Usage

- Only approved datasets may be used in AI experiments or demonstrations.
- Synthetic or anonymised data must be used for training, prompt testing, and user-facing demos unless explicit approval exists.
- Artifacts shared outside Meridian must be reviewed for confidential information, contractual restrictions, and branding compliance.
